A 21 BILLION CITY
HOW STRANGE IS GOLD

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright 1930 By King Features Syndicate Inc.)

If real estate values impress you, take off your hat to old Father Knickerbocker of New York City. New York's real estate for taxation is tentatively assessed more than $19,296,000,000—an increase of more than $1,100,000,000. That doesn't include personal property, or franchise assessments, which would bring the total value up to $21,000,000,000.

No wonder New York state and New York City have good credit in the money market. One single building, the Empire State, erected by former Governor Smith and associates, is assessed at $42,000,000.

Strange is gold, "yellow and cold, scorned by the young and loved by the old, almost within the grave's cold mould."

First, foreign nations, including Switzerland and Belgium, take away nearly $300,000,000 of our gold. Today you read that Japan is sending us $55,000,000 gold. Japan intends to cling to the gold standard, and sends us the gold to protect "yen exchange against our dollar."

If you don't understand that, you have plenty of company, in your lack of understanding.

The English pound went up in value yesterday. Why?

There is talk of an increase in Federal Reserve rediscount rates. Why is that necessary?

The Federal Reserve is not doing the work it was supposed to do, making currency plentiful in times of depression.

The federal reserve can be discounted only what is called "commercial paper." In a depression, when currency is most needed, with flexible credit, the "commercial paper" disappears and there is nothing for the federal reserve to discount.

How much time will be needed to make the federal reserve more flexible, that it may issue currency, against other values as good as commercial paper?

There is comfort in the words, "a dollar's worth of gold back of every dollar," but it is possible to have your money too valuable. Ask the business men of Niagara Falls. Canadian dollars are worth only 70 cents in American money, and Canadian customers are not buying on the American side.

What applies to tourists from Canada applies to importers of all countries that must use their feeble money to buy our powerful dollars when they purchase goods here.

It is said that the administration in Washington will not even discuss bi-metalism or putting silver back to its old respectable place. The government believes that gold is the best basis for our country's monetary system, that Britain and other European countries have abandoned the gold standard only temporarily.

However, silver has been good money for 5,000 years. We have plenty of it, and it is generally admitted that the nation, as a whole and as individuals, needs "more currency."

Uncle Sam's revenue in a year is off $1,000,000,000. Governments, like individuals, suddenly lose their credit when they really want money. They can get all they want when they don't need it.

LOIS HOOVER, JANE GRAY IN HOSPITAL

Russell Clark, Wife and Her Mother Cut and Bruised

Five persons, two Salem school children and three Warren residents, were injured in an automobile accident at the intersection of North Edsforth ave and Tenth st. at 12:50 p. m. today.

The injured

Jane, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Gray, 256 West Tenth st.

Lois, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Hoover, 1063 Buckeye ave.

The children are reported by witnesses to have been walking across the street intersection, enroute to Fourth st. school where they are students in second grade, and apparently failed to see the approaching automobile.

Clark, attempting to avoid striking them, turned his machine off the street, crashing into a tree and telephone pole. The side of the automobile struck the children, knocking them to the pavement.

Clark and his two passengers were thrown out of the machine when it was demolished against the pole.

Children Are Cut

Both of the girls sustained lacerations about the head. They were taken to their homes after injuries were treated at Central Clinic hospital.

Mrs. Zech's injuries were not definitely ascertained this afternoon. She sustained a severe cut back of the head and leg injuries. Mrs. Clark was cut about the left eye, right arm, knee and sustained minor body bruises.

Clark was cut about the eye and nose. He was exonerated from any responsibility in the mishap by witnesses. Police are investigating.

TYPICAL MACK DRIVE CRUSHES FIGHTING CARDS

Victory Is Same Old Story Of Athletic Steam Roller Power

WINNERS 4 TO 1 BET TO CAPTURE SERIES

Earnshaw and Hallahan To Battle On Slab In Today's Tilt

BY EDWARD J. NEIL, Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2.—Amid steadily increasing plaudits of a baseball world that knows a truly great team when it sees one, the world champion Philadelphia Athletics have picked up the thread of world series conquests where they dropped it last fall.

It isn't so much that the A's, seeking a record of three straight series championships, whipped the St. Louis Cardinals, 6 to 2, yesterday in the opening game of the annual fall diamond classic. One game, important at the start of a short seven game clash, still does not necessarily mean ultimate victory.

Same Old Steam Roller

Rather it was the way the champions of the baseball world, insolvent in their confidence, rose up in their might to come from behind and administer a typical Athletics thrashing to a team keyed to the point of desperation in its quest of victory. It was the old, old story of Athletic power, administered with crushing effect, steam-rolling the enemy into broken submission just when hope was beginning to sprout again.

Last fall the Athletics leaped upon these same Cardinals in the world series, blasting them apart at just exactly the psychological moments to win their second straight world triumph for Connie Mack. They entered the first game of the 1931 pageant a natural favorite at 8 to 5, and today, facing the second and last game here until three matches have been played in Philadelphia next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, they stand out a 4 to 1 choice to gather in their third straight series conquest, something never before achieved in the history of baseball.

38,529 See Contest

A crowd of 38,529, jamming flag-draped Sportsman's park to within a few hundred of absolute capacity, paid $165,161 yesterday to see the Athletics, with absolute ease and nonchalance, smother a situation that had dramatic possibilities as great as any opening contest in the history of these time honored duels of the American and National League champions.

Jimmy Dykes bounced a single over third, first hit off the rookie, and Dibs Williams, sensational young shortstop, cracked a safe shot into right. Grove fanned for the first of three times and Max Bishop's grounded led to Dykes being trapped off third. Mule Hahn belted a double into left and one run was over. Mickey Cochrane walked.

But there were two out and the big crowd sat tense as Derringer his lead fading, worked carefully on the outstanding slugger of the team, Al Simmons. The big youngster got three balls and two strikes on the major league hitting champion.

One more strike, even a ball hit so that a fielder could handle it, and Derringer might have come through to hear his name sung today all over the baseball world. Instead the crucial pitch was an inen or so wide Simmons walked. And the deluge came with the run he forced in. Big Jimmy Foxx hammered a vicious single through the infield, another pair of runs counted, and the game was on ice.

Later, in the seventh inning, when it meant little except for the picture value, Simmons plucked off a high, wide ball and planted it in the left field bleachers. Mickey Cochrane, who had singled, scored ahead of him. Derringer left the game at the end of the seventh and Sylvester Johnson held the A's hitless for the last two.

Grove, hit harder than was expected, coasted in after the big fourth inning although the Cards reached him for 12 hits, one more than the A's got off Derringer.

Today the Cards had "Big Jarge" Earnshaw to contend with and even in the hearts of the most rabid National League partisans, there was little hope. Gabby Street named Wild Bill Hallahan, the lefty who shut out the Athletics last year, to do his pitching.

"Gabby's" Hope

Hallahan today looked as Manager Gabby Street's hope to even the present world series with the Athletics. He is slated to oppose George Earnshaw.

There was Lefty Grove, probably the greatest southpaw of all times, certainly the finest pitcher of his day, easing his long, lank frame into the hurling box to oppose a giant right handed Rookie, Paul Derringer, No. 1 man of the Cardinals and the best freshman in the Major leagues ever to start the opening world series game for his team.

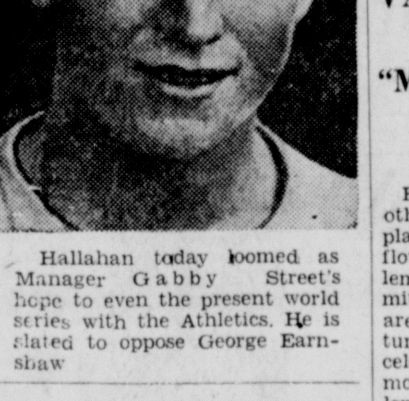

It was a situation crammed with history making opportunities, and the great crowd, basking in the warmth of a blue-murky Indian summer afternoon caught every bit of the dramatic possibilities.

The big rookie, solid and chilly as a cold storage turkey, bent to his task. Four of the first six men to face him went down, lunging futilely at his dazzling curve ball. And in the meantime the Cardinals, swinging from the hip in desperation, climbed aboard the mighty groove.

Hit Grove's Slants

There was something wrong with the great Lefty's curve and control. In the very first inning, after he had fanned little Andy High, Wally Rottger smacked a single. Frankie Frisch shot a single into right on the hit and run play and Jim Bottomley, the hitting bust of the 1930 clashes, promptly drove home the first run with a single. And before the inning was over Pepper Martin, the young center fielder, like Derringer, a newcomer to this sort of thing, banged out a long double and a second run was scored.

Then the champions were held until they turned their power loose on the rookie in the fourth.

EIGHTY SERVED AT COUNTY BANQUET

Lisbon Is Selected As Site For Group's 1932 Convention

BODY IS FOUND; MURDER HINTED

Coroner Sturgis Suspects "Ride" In Tragedy Near Lisbon

The body of an unidentified man, believed by Coroner Ernest R. Sturgis of East Liverpool to be a murder victim, was found in an unfrequented path off the Lincoln highway, two and one-half miles west of Lisbon, Thursday night.

The body was discovered by two youths, Lloyd Crowe and Joseph Armstrong, of near Lisbon, as they were catching minnows preparatory to going fishing about 6 p. m. yesterday. The body was lying against a tree, and badly decomposed.

Sturgis, following an investigation which he conducted with Sheriff William J. Barlow, expressed the opinion today that the man, believed to be about 60 years old, had been taken for a ride, and the body carried to the path. He is thought to have been dead for at least 12 weeks.

No marks of violence were found on the body as far as county officials could ascertain. All identification marks had been removed from clothing.

The body was taken to the Eells funeral home in Lisbon. Burial will be made this afternoon.

A COMMUNITY PROJECT
Salem's fall festival program, arranged by members of the Salem Business bureau and the Salem post of the American Legion, opens today and will continue until Saturday night.

The two-day event includes a variety of attractions, among which are numerous entertainment features, notably the parade of American Legion drum corps and bands and competition for cash awards
Saturday afternoon at Reilly stadium, and the midget football game tonight at Reilly stadium, in which Sheen's Bulldogs of Salem will clash with the Kent Bearcats, nationally known "kids" eleven.

At the same time, Salem stores are dressing up for the occasion, livening up their windows and interiors, renewing stocks and presents merchandise in every line at prices which, it is safe to say, are lower than any in a decade.

It may be the era of depression, black clouds have dimmed the economic skies, and things, apparently, are not just what ought to be, but the community spirit and courage that prompts fall festivals and similar events is guarantee enough that a "man may be down but he's never out."

The Business bureau and the American Legion are working hard, in these festival days, and in other ways as well, to keep that spirit on a high plane. Let every individual who can, do his share.

3 RULES

big help to BOWELS

What a joy to have the bowels move like clockwork, every day! It's easy, if you mind these simple rules of a famous old doctor:

1. Drink a big tumblerful of water before breakfast, and several times a day.
2. Get plenty of outdoor exercise without unduly fatiguing yourself.
3. Try for a bowel movement at exactly the same hour every day.

Everyone's bowels need help at times, but the thing to use is Dr.
Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You'll get a thorough cleaning-out, and it won't leave your insides weak and watery.
This family doctor's prescription is just fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin, and other helpful ingredients that couldn't hurt a child. But how it wakes up those lazy bowels! How good you feel with your system rid of all that poisonous waste matter.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland,
New York City

Sleep Essential to Health

Most visitors to great cities complain that they can't sleep. Of course, a good many of them are so busy there are few hours left for sleep.

Out of towners are apt to wonder how "city folks" can get along with so little sleep. The fact is the natives are in bed long before the visitors even think of retiring. The activities of a big city are most alluring to those who cannot indulge in them at home.

There is no doubt that most city dwellers do not get the same number of hours of sleep as do our cousins in the country.

Sleep is extremely important to health. Health cannot be maintained for any long period of time without an abundance of rest. Colgate University recently made a survey of the sleeping habits of over five hundred men of distinction. It was learned that the average number of hours of sleep was from seven and one-half to eight hours.

Twelve hundred questionnaires were sent out and the fact that most of them answered shows the widespread realization of the importance of sleep. Among the men questioned were governors, writers, generals, playwrights, doctors, college presidents, judges and other extremely busy men.

There is a tradition that great thinkers and men of genius get along with very little sleep. There is an old theory that five hours of sleep is plenty and that old folks need much less sleep than younger people. Neither of these common beliefs is true.

Five Hours Not Sufficient
Old as well as young require sufficient sleep. Five hours are not enough to give an active mind and body adequate rest.

Many persons are eager to sleep yet cannot go to sleep. This may occur after a difficult day, particularly if much nerve strain and energy have been consumed. Many methods have been suggested to encourage sleep.

The least harmful of all methods of inducing sleep is to take a warm drink or hot bath just before going to bed. This method of obtaining relaxation is usually successful. I will tell you more on another occasion.

Swiftest, Easiest Way to End Bilious Spell

When you neglect those first symptoms of constipation—bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness, the whole system soon suffers. Appetite lags. Digestion slows up. You become headachy, dizzy, bilious.

It's easy to correct sluggish bowel action! Take a candy Cascaret to-night. See how quickly—and pleasantly—the bowels are activated. All the souring waste is gently propelled from the system. Regular and complete bowel action is restored. Cascarets are made from pure cascara, a substance which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. All drug stores have Cascarets. 10c. Adv

Your Kitchen Knows No Seasons

FALL or winter, spring or summer, the temperature of your kitchen stays about the same — far too high for safe food preservation. It just won't do to let perishable foods—milk, meats, fruits and vegetables—lie around the house. They dry out, wilt, lose color, weight and flavor. Bacteria multiply, foods spoil and are thrown away as waste.

Nor are perishable foods safe in the cellar or in a makeshift shelter outside the window, prey to changeable weather, vagrant animals, dust and soot. Only in a well-iced refrigerator are foods always safe, protected from the time of delivery until they are prepared for the table. Depend upon ICE in all weathers.

HANKOW, Oct. 2.—Thrown into the turbid flood waters of the Yangtze river when their plane capsized here today, Colonel and Mrs.

Tossed into the swift stream while wearing their kumbersome flying togs the flying couple were rescued along with the doctor by a lifeboat crew from the British aircraft carrier Hermes.

DRIVE LAUNCHED FOR IMPROVING OF CENTENNIAL PARK FIELD

START CAMPAIGN AT LEAGUE FETE THURSDAY NIGHT

Football League Players, Officials Gather In Yearly Banquet

C. C. GIBSON LAUDS CIRCUIT'S SUCCESS

Speaker Pledges $200 To Fund; Managers Give Short Talks

A campaign for funds to provide for the improvement of the Centennial park field and establishment of a second football playing field was launched by members of the Salem Athletic association and officials, gathered in their annual banquet at the Memorial building Thursday night.

Gibson Chief Speaker
More than 60 men, players and officials of the Salem Softball league, attended the banquet, held in celebration of the most successful season in the organization's history. Award of a silver trophy cup to the championship Mullins Foremen's club team, an address by C. C. Gibson, president of the Mullins Manufacturing corporation, and talks by players and officials featured the gathering.

Gibson lauded the league "as the outstanding athletic achievement in the city's history" and paid tribute to J. M. Kelley, manager of the Memorial building, for the part the latter played in its organization. The high standards of sportsmanship displayed by league players during the season and their cooperation among all teams was regarded by the speaker as factors in the league's success.

Pledges $200 to Fund
Speaking of the serious need of an improved playing field for the softball league, Mr. Gibson fired the opening gun in the campaign for funds to provide such an improvement when he pledged the Mullins Manufacturing corporation for a contribution of $100 and made a similar personal subscription to aid in the project. Efforts will be made by league officials to obtain additional funds.

Kelley, first speaker, offered appreciation of the cooperation of team managers and spoke of the fine fellowship among players as the real reason for the league's success. He offered the association's thanks for Mr. Gibson's $200 contribution to the improvement fund and paid tribute to the Mullins executive's willingness to back all Salem athletic activities.

Plan Benefit Grid Game
Plans were discussed for the improvement of Centennial park field and the establishment of a second diamond to give the league, which last season was composed of ten teams, two playing fields. E. C. Sheen, backer of the Salem Bulldogs, midget football eleven, offered to hold a benefit grid contest, all proceeds going into the fund.

A silver trophy cup, emblematic of the city championship, was awarded to Russell E. Smith, manager of the Foremen's club team, who gave a short talk in behalf of the title-winners. Short talks were also given by Mayor J. M. Davidson, Harry Vincent, Charles Reed, Thomas Cartwright, F. W. Davis, August Corso, Lee Christen, W. F. Bolen, Donald Carey, William Carlisle, Harold C. Cox, George Early, Twing Seeds, Charles Stitt, Arnold P. Lutes, A. E. Beardmore, C. Everett McKinley, Lewis Briskin and Raphael Reasback.

Mayor Davidson and Beardmore represented the board of arbitration with discussions of the league. Joseph Reese, the third member of the board was introduced. Briskin, official scorer of the league, was presented a pen and pencil set for services rendered during the season.

Cincinnati Tackles Ohio State Eleven

COLUMBUS, Oct. 2. — Close to 20,000 fans are expected to gather at Ohio State university's massive stadium Saturday to see the 1931 Buckeye gridiron machine in action when the University of Cincinnati Bearcats come here to open the season.

That Coach S. S. Willaman hopes to take Cincinnati in stride was indicated yesterday when the bucks started to work on a defense constructed to stop Vanderbilt plays. The commanders are here for the second game of the season, on Oct. 10.

Series Game Holds no Thrills for Medbury; Street Confident

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2.—Nearly 40,000 people turned out to see the first game of the world series. The park was so crowded that a contortionist who came in late had to sit in his own lap.

The game was very slow and uninteresting, but I understood the management took in the neighborhood of $165,000—well

BIG TEN TEAMS SCHEDULED FOR STIFF BATTLES

Notre Dame Big Favorite To Trim Indiana; Pitt Will Meet Iowa

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Oct. 2. — Big Ten football, rated on the College Exchange as one of the best brands of the pigskin chasing industry, may realize what a real market is like Saturday when three of its representatives finish their important battle against powerful non-conference foes.

Hoosier Battle Irish
No one except the most audacious Hoosier freshman gave Indiana more than fighting chance against "Hunk" Anderson's Notre Dame army at Bloomington; Iowa's hopes of stemming the Pittsburgh invasion were dimmed by injuries, while a stirring battle was anticipated from start to finish, between Nebraska and Northwestern at Evanston.

Of the trio of Big Ten teams, Northwestern was granted the best chance to serve a victory Saturday. Fortified by experienced veterans and a great line, the Wildcats were in excellent physical condition to hush the huskers from Nebraska. Al Moore, a promising halfback candidate, was the only wildcard on the injury list, but two or three sophomores of exceptional promise were ready to make Coach Dick Hanley forget all about him. Nebraska, too, was in fine shape, physically and mentally, for the big battle at Dwyer stadium.

Well Satisfied
Four full Notre Dame teams headed for Bloomington today with a stop-over at Martinsville, Ind., for a final but brief drill. Coach Anderson, fully satisfied with prospects, said he planned to give every man a try in the Hoosier game as an inventory for the more important Northwestern game a week away.

Three full Pittsburgh teams headed for Iowa and every player was in good shape as compared to several injuries in the Hawkeye squad. Meanwhile six other conference teams confidently awaited the whistle for easier non-conference games. Michigan had a double-header with Central State teachers and Michigan Normal college. Illinois worried some over kicking before its opening game with St. Louis university; Ohio State planned to send two seniors, five juniors and four sophomores against the University of Cincinnati.

Purdue Plays Twin Ball
Purdue was all set with a veteran lineup for its first doubleheader in history against Western Reserve and Coe, champions of the Midwest Conference. Wisconsin was framing a fine passing attack to greet Bradley, and Minnesota polished up its defense for Oklahoma's Aggies. Chicago took it easy with no game until Oct. 10 when it meets Michigan.

they certainly took in the neighborhood.

The mayor was supposed to start the proceedings by tossing the first ball out into the field, but changed his mind. With the depression all over in St. Louis, the city isn't throwing anything away. At half past one the band played the "Star Spangled Banner" and 35,000 thousand Americans stood up, which gave the foreigners a chance to get seats.

Famed Gate Crasher Present
One-eyed Connolly, the champion gate crasher, had a dandy seat in the bleachers, but when the authorities discovered that he had paid the regular admission price, they wanted to arrest him for getting into the park under false pretenses.

Connolly was telling me that he ran all the way to the ball grounds behind a street car and saved a dime. If he had been smart he would have run behind a taxicab and saved a dollar and a quarter.

The whole thing was very dull and uninteresting. The sky was overcast and several times we were threatened with rain, but not once during the whole hour and 55 minutes of playing, were we threatened with a ball game.

In spite of the Athletics' victory, Gabby Street still thinks the Cardinals are the most colorful team in any league. Well, he's got a right to his own opinion; he can't help it if he's color blind.

Shy Rookie, 21, Starts Climb to Fame in Thursday's Opener

(By Associated Press)
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2.—He does not aspire to heroics but Dibrrell Williams, 21-year-old recruit shortstop of the world champion Athletics, is well on his way today to becoming one of the heroes of the 1931 world series.

Except for the fates of baseball which have just about eliminated Joe Boley from the championship series, with the Cardinals, Williams would not be in a spot to make or break the Athletics' defense.

But, being dropped into the spot has made no difference to the youngster, who regards even contest in the world championship series as just another ball game.

Boley, thoroughly realizing Williams is taking over his job, perhaps permanently, has worked tirelessly to teach the youngster all he knows.

Young Dib, whose most noticeable characteristics are a huge chew of tobacco and an almost phlegmatic calmness, is the youngest player in the big series, but he is taking it as matter-of-factly as though he was as seasoned as his instructor.

Williams, who has been tutored by Boley since long before current injuries made it impossible for the veteran to pull through with an easy victory. The other game involving county rivals tomorrow is that which takes Leetonia to Columbiana for a contest that should be among the best of the season. Columbiana is declared to have its best team in years.

Coach Stone brought his Quaker City gridders through a week of steady drilling, preparing them for the invasion of Warren next Friday, October 9.

Butler College Team Opposes Ohio U. Gridders on Saturday

ATHENS, Oct. 2. — Relieved by last Saturday's 7 to 6 defeat at the hands of Indiana university's Western Conference eleven, of the strain and tension attendant upon efforts to extend a record string of 19 consecutive victories, the Ohio University Bobcats have this week turned serious attention to preparations for meeting another strong team from the Hoosier state.

Battle Butler Eleven
A gridiron aggregation from Butler college, Indianapolis, will furnish the opposition for the Green and White at Ohio stadium in Athens, Saturday.

Last year the Buckeye Conference champs had difficulty in winning from the Butler boys in a night game on their home field. Ohio won 12 to 7 but the victory points came in the waning moments of the game and only after a terrific battle.

Coach Don Peden has been double drilling his proteges on forward pass defense this week. The Bobcats were noticeably weak in this department in the contest with Indiana U.

Joy reigned in the Ohio camp yesterday when Rex Burke, Paulding, all-Ohio end last year, returned to the lineup for a brief workout after a period of hospitalization due to a badly wrenched knee. Whether or not Burke will be used in the Butler game is still uncertain.

Other Cripples Improve
Other cripples among Coach Peden's veterans who are very much on mend are Fred Jeffery, Toledo, tackle, and Lowell Livingston, Marshall, Mich., center.

Claude Chrisman, Mt. Vernon, all-Ohio guard, has completely recovered from a leg infection and is a sure starter.

While Jeffery, Livingston and Chrisman all saw service at Bloomington they were somewhat handicapped by their ailments.

George Collins, Sidney, end, who received the only serious injury in the Indiana game is still out of uniform and may be lost to the squad for the weekend.

Robert Hilbert, Piqua, end, who blocked Indiana's punt last Saturday, and William Snyder, London, tackle, who fell on it for six points, have probably won places for themselves in the starting lineup against Butler.

PLAYING WITH FIRE

BY WILLIAM McLEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS

Lee Reynolds is owner of a ranch. Drought has almost ruined and starved the cattle. School friends from the east come as paying guests. Lee quarrels with her ranch foreman, Ransie Brennan, partly on account of a new hand, named Smith, she hired without his permission and partly because she rejects his love suit. Brennan is discharged and swears revenge. Dunc Daggett, an old ranch helper, recognizes Smith as Jack Hadley, millionaire oil man of California, whose father was murdered by outlaws. Hadley tells Daggett that he is searching for the murderer of his father. Lee leaves a Mexican ranch and moves the herd there. Mrs. Doris Silver, a flirtatious friend of Lee's, goes on ahead to the Mexican ranch. Brennan drops in on her just before Jack Hadley, who has been sent on by Lee, arrives. Hadley drives off Palo Duro for supplies and takes Doris with him. Doris wanders off and is abducted and Hadley has to fight several natives to rescue her. A revolution breaks out. Megares, boy man of the border, is head of it, with Brennan his right hand man. Brennan tries to get Hadley, but he escapes.

INSTALLMENT 15

AN APPEAL TO CAESAR
"Did you think I would start gunning and bring Megares' army down on you?"

"I was thinking about you," Lee said simply.

"When you put your hand on that bronc's nose?" Jack asked.

"Yes. That is, I wanted to shake this aim."

"You knew Tequila would start pitching?"

"He was in a circus once and learned the trick there."

"Lucky for me you remembered that." Then, with studied lightness, "I'll not forget," he added.

"Is it safe for you to be here? Oughtn't you to be riding for the border? Alone you might get across."

"As safe for me as for you."

Daggett had discreetly vanished. They turned and walked into the deep shadows of the live oak grove. Lee caught herself wondering at her emotion—a world remade, and all because a man was walking beside her.

"Why isn't it safe for me?" she asked.

"He did not beat about the bush as he would have done with Doris. He told her his thought, sure that she would have the courage to face any danger that threatened."

"Brennan won't stop until he has ruined you—unless we can prevent him."

"Take my stock, you mean?"

"That anyhow." He left the answer vague, unless it was more definite to say, "He's a bad hombre, and he hates you."

"Not as much as he does you now."

"I don't know. The point is you are within his reach. He'll put you in the wrong if he can. How can we prevent it?"

"She loved that 'we'. He had identified himself with her. He had taken over her troubles for his own. All her life she had been mistress of the little kingdom about her except during schooldays in the east. She had liked the sense of power, the assurance that she was first and her will was law. Freedom had been second nature to her. Often she had exulted because she was her own woman with none to say nay. She could ride into endless miles of sun and wind, fancy free, a part of the untamed life stretching all around her."

"Now it came to her, thrillingly, almost as a shock, that freedom was a dubious gift. She did not want to lead, to give orders to others. She no longer wanted even to manage her own life. A strange few humiliations flooded her with delight. She wished to be told what to do and then to do it without question; to be owned, to be absorbed into the life current of this man whose voice set her pulses drumming. He might or might not make her happy. That was beside the question. Out of a world of men he was the mate her soul longed for."

"Ransie hates us both," she said, talking of the surface thing in her mind. "It's queer he could work for us so long and keep his real nature covered. I knew he was harsh and overbearing, but I didn't realize he was bad. Did Dunc tell you he took 50 of our best steers with him?"

"Yes. . . . He's driving through tonight?"

"He told his men he expected to make it beyond the pass before day break."

"Chances are he'll stay with the bunch till they are over the pass and then ride on to Palo Duro ahead of his men." He hesitated before telling what he had planned. "I wish I had met Megares and knew what he was like personally."

"Why?"

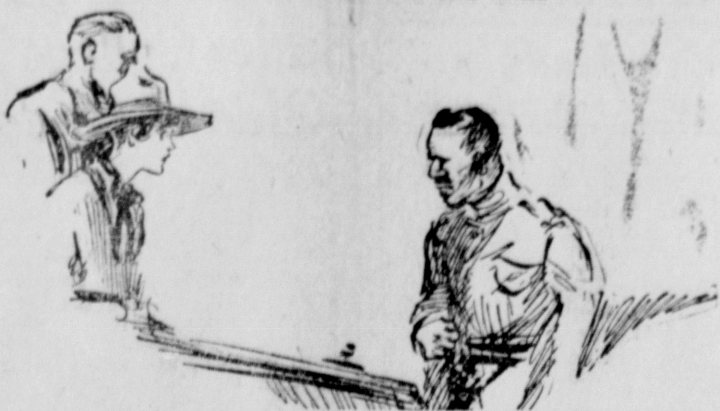

"He's a queer compound, they say. Vain and foolish, with a good deal of play at being the gentleman, but really as callous as an Indian. But that's what I've been told. If he's as ambitious as they say he is, probably he wants to make a good impression just now on our government in order to give no excuse for intervention. What I'm getting at is this: Why not appeal to Megares over Brennan's head? It might do some good. If he gave an order Brennan's hands would be tied."

"How would we reach Megares?"

"I'd drive you in tonight. We'd see him as soon as we could in the morning and get our facts in before Brennan reports his version of the story."

"But you couldn't go to Palo Duro," she objected. "It's the very thing we've been trying to avoid."

"He grinned. 'John Smith, cowboy, couldn't go maybe without being put in the house, but Jack Hadley, millionaire oil man of California, wouldn't have any trouble."

Lee opened her eyes wide. "Are you a millionaire oil man?"

"Something like that. No credit to me. I'm rather ashamed of it. Other men found it and sunk the wells and pump it out of my land. All I do is collect the royalties. If there's any justice in that I don't see it. But I don't complain. It's convenient for me."

"I should think it might be," she said.

His smile was persuasive. "Come! Be a sport, muchacha!"

"We'll start in just 15 minutes," he said decisively. "I want to get across the pass before Brennan."

During the first hour of that rush through the night they talked little. She was content to sit beside him, to know that he was near. His gaze was intent on the road, and she could steal little glances at him unobserved. He had a face not easy to read, sometimes hard and cold, often mocking.

Two or three times he stopped the car to listen. What he wanted to hear and what at last did come to them on the night breeze was the bawling of restless cattle on the move. He was driving without lights, and he detoured slowly to pass the drive without being observed.

The wheels bumped over the rough ground for what seemed an interminable distance. Jack nosed expertly through narrow lanes fenced by cactus and mesquite. Time and again he backed to find another passage. Once he got out to see if the sand of a dry wash was negotiable. At last, after a long and tortuous circuit, the car came back to the road well ahead of the Brennan party.

Before they reached the pass Jack turned on the lights. There was a straight run ahead of them now, with no likelihood of interruption until they reached the outskirts of the town. They followed the road into Palo Duro.

From the hill which looked down into the town they could see troops in the plaza. The road was guarded by soldiers. They were stopped and arrested.

Hadley spoke in Spanish to the officer. "You are one of the patriot army?" he asked.

"Yes. Who are you?" the man replied.

The American's smile was disarming. "If you don't mind, captain, I'll tell it to the general."

"He's asleep now after being up nearly all night."

"Well wait," Hadley said.

They spent five hours, without breakfast, in an adobe hut adjacent to the general's headquarters. There was a bench inside the room, but no chairs. Two soldiers guarded them. Jack did business with the more intelligent. He had already suggested the palm of the captain, but he did not want to run any risk of having Megares go about his affairs without having been informed of their presence. The guard kept his eyes open. Five dollars in good United States currency did not come his way every day.

"The general will see you," he announced at last.

Lee and Hadley were led into the government building, along a corridor, and into an office where a

A Great Novel

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By Wanda Barton

Plenty of little tables for delightful service of the odd meals—the tea for two or three, the late supper, the sandwich meal, or indulgent breakfast. And there are many varieties to choose from this year, what with the modernistic types, the elegant coffee tables of fine carved woods, the sturdy table of plain natural-finish wood, in the Colonial or French provincial manner.

While a finely finished low table is beautiful for tea service, still there is a superior utility about the other type. These tables of oak, walnut, maple, in natural finish, will stand up under a lot of rough treatment. No permanent rings left by cold glasses or hot cups—which means no nervous hovering of the scrupulous housekeeper who is trying at the same time to be a care-free hostess!

Popular Tile-Top Tables

The growth in popularity of the little tile-top tables is also a blessing to hospitable folks. These tile-tops set on iron stands can be obtained for modest sums, or they go tural finish developed, time and use will mellow not injure it.

Incidentally, the habit of little table service is helpful to the housekeeper who likes dainty service but hasn't the time to set a formal dining-room table for each meal. A small square of lace or fine linen laid over a little coffee table makes it adequate for a meal for two—and with a special charm of its own. For in these days of moderation in eating there's no need of the huge groaning board regarded as the true sign of hospitality in an earlier day. It's dainty service rather than obvious abundance that makes a table attractive, and the little table has the advantage there.

The "drum table" once made only in large sizes for the living room, is now made in a miniature size, low and much smaller and it is a delightful setting for a small meal, adequate for two or three persons. Some of the low coffee tables while only two feet long or even less can be expanded by pulling out concealed sliding boards, and made large enough for an informal buffet supper.
